Participant Engagement & Feedback

The session saw active participation from all departments. Students asked questions related to resume formats, technical interviews, and company-specific expectations. Informal feedback suggested that students found the session insightful and motivating. Many requested follow-up sessions on aptitude practice and mock interviews.

Conclusion

The session successfully created awareness among students about the placement process and helped them understand what companies look for in candidates. It laid a foundation for students to begin their preparation early and with clear direction.

Observation

The session highlighted a need for additional support in areas like aptitude test preparation and soft skills training. Based on the interest shown, department-wise follow-up sessions or workshops may be beneficial.
